STATE TRAINING SERVICES

INDEPENDENT INDUSTRY SUPPORT SERVICE State Training Services

What is the Independent Industry Support Service?

The Independent Industry Support Service will be provided by State Training Services and delivered by its state-wide network of State Training Centres. It has been established to support school-based apprenticeships, school-based traineeships and Trade Schools across NSW.

The Independent Industry Support Service will provide industry support and engagement services to:

- promote part time school based apprenticeships and traineeships to employers
- assist schools to match interested students with suitable employers
- assist employers to structure appropriate employment and training arrangements to meet both apprenticeship/traineeship and school requirements
- assist schools to understand employer and workplace requirements
- support post school placement of apprentices.

What will the Independent Industry Support Service do?

The Independent Industry Support Service will:

- liaise with industry stakeholders, including employers, schools, registered training organisations, Australian Apprenticeships Centres, Local Community Partnerships, group training organisations, Job Network agencies, and the broader community to establish support frameworks and networks for school based apprenticeships and traineeships
- promote and provide information to students, parents, schools, industry, employers, registered training organisations and the broader community on school based apprenticeships and traineeships
- engage in discussions with local employers regarding school based apprenticeships and school based traineeships to identify trade training opportunities to address skills shortages
- assist schools to place school based apprentices and trainees with suitable employers
- assist schools and employers during the establishment of school based apprenticeships or traineeships to ensure that all apprenticeship/traineeship and school requirements are met
- provide support to school based apprentices, school based trainees, their employers and schools during the term of the apprenticeship or traineeship to facilitate successful completion of the apprenticeship or traineeship

What help can State Training Centres provide directly to school based apprentices/trainees and their employers?

School based apprentices/trainees and employers can contact their local State Training Centre for:

- information about the availability and suitability of apprenticeships and traineeships for the workplace
- advice about entering into an apprenticeship or traineeship training contract and their obligations under the training contract
- advice and assistance concerning options for changes to the training contract
- help with problems in the workplace
- help with training or assessment services provided by the Registered Training Organisation
